WRAS APPROVED PRODUCT

Easy to install to existing sinks

InSinkErator food waste disposers and hot water taps are often specified as a part of upgraded or new kitchens. However, both products are capable of being retro-fitted within standard kitchens and simply require access to regular plumbing and an electrical power source.

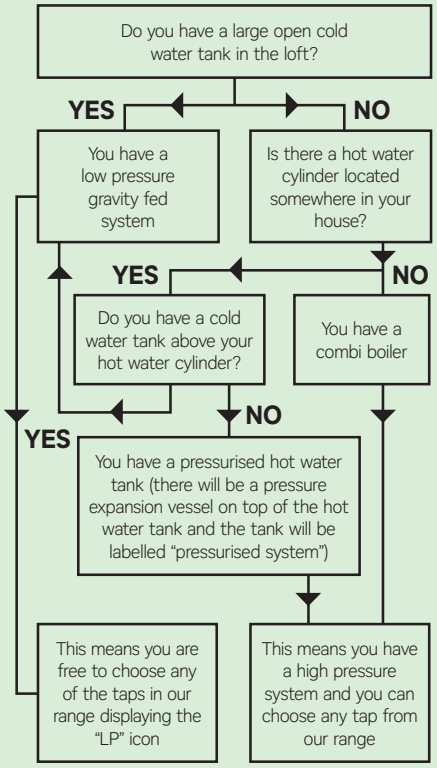
The perfect choice

Complement your sink by choosing a contemporary or traditional tap from our stylish range.

Be sure to keep an eye out for the latest design within our taps range that offers great benefits such as pull out nozzles, Brita Filtration or even instant steaming hot water at a touch.

Things to consider...

Your water pressure



Do you have a large open cold water tank in the loft?
YES
NO
You have a low pressure gravity fed system
Is there a hot water cylinder located somewhere in your house?
YES
Do you have a cold water tank above your hot water cylinder?
You have a combi boiler
YES
NO
You have a pressurised hot water tank (there will be a pressure expansion vessel on top of the hot water tank and the tank will be labelled "pressurised system")
This means you are free to choose any of the taps in our range displaying the "LP" icon
This means you have a high pressure system and you can choose any tap from our range

Water pressure
Low pressure LP	Gravity fed system	You will have a cold water tank in the loft and hot water cylinder, often installed in the airing cupboard. If you live in a flat or bungalow you will have a cold water tank above your hot water cylinder
High pressure	Combination boiler	No hot or cold water storage tanks in the house, just a boiler which is typically located in the kitchen. Hot water available on demand 24 hours a day, 7 days a week
	Pressurised system	No cold water tank, but you do have a hot water cylinder – usually found in newer properties. High pressure cylinders will have a pressure expansion vessel at the top of the water tank and the tank itself will probably be labelled "high pressure system"

Things to consider...

Whether you are looking for softer lighting to provide a warm, relaxing atmosphere when the family are gathering in the kitchen, or need direct lighting on your cabinets and worktop as you prepare food, our range will create just the right environment within any kitchen. Talk to an in-store consultant about how to achieve a kitchen lighting effect that's just right for you.

Remember it is much easier to do the wiring and mounting of new lights during the installation of your new kitchen, instead of installing the lights afterwards. Fitting lights during the kitchen installation also allows for wires to be hidden, creating a seamless finish.

Lighting zone guide

Use our kitchen zone guide to help you select the safest lighting option for your kitchen, simply:

1 Identify the position of your new light
2 Check against the zone guide which lights are most suitable

Design and planning explained

Q. Where can I see these kitchens on display?
A. Your local store will display a selection of kitchens, but the number of styles shown does vary according to the space available.

Q. I'd like to see a kitchen consultant. How do I arrange this? When are they available, and how long should I allow?
A. To book an appointment with a kitchen consultant, just visit your local store (for details of your nearest store call 0845 077 8888*). Consultants are available during store opening hours, and it's best to make an appointment a few days ahead to be sure of getting a convenient time slot. A typical design appointment lasts about one hour. Don't forget to bring along your room's measurements.

Q. How can I work out the cost of my kitchen?
A. Calculating the cost of a kitchen can be complicated, so why not leave this to one of our kitchen consultants? When you use our free planning and design service, your kitchen consultant will be happy to provide a fully itemised breakdown of the cost of your kitchen design. You can also pick up a copy of the kitchen price list in store.

Q. What does 'natural wood may vary in tone' mean?
A. Many of the doors in the Homebase range have been designed and crafted from real wood and veneers. These high quality products show the natural beauty of wood and when viewed as a complete kitchen will create a stunning palette of shade and grain changes that wood effect materials cannot reproduce. Because we are making real wood and veneer doors from a natural product we cannot guarantee that every door will look identical or the same as the brochure or in store displays.
